Cisco / Abilene, Texas - March 14, 2022 – Brock Kimball has been named the new head coach of Cisco College women's basketball.

Prior to taking the reins at Northwest Tech, Kimball spent three seasons as an assistant coach at South Plains College under Cayla Petree, teaming with the Morehead State bench boss to lead South Plains to 65 victories and an appearance in the NJCAA Women's Basketball National Tournament Sweet 16.

Under Kimball's tutelage, four Texans earned Western Junior College Athletic Conference All-Conference honors, including the 2016-17 WJCAC Defensive Player of the Year Brittany Smith and co-WJCAC Newcomer of the Year Jasauen Beard.

Before joining Petree's staff at South Plains College, Kimball spent two seasons as a graduate assistant at Angelo State under current Texas head coach Chris Beard. While on the Rams coaching staff, he helped lead Angelo State to back-to-back winning seasons, including 28 wins and an NCAA Division II Sweet 16 appearance in 2014-15.

At Angelo State, Kimball guided Kenny Williams to 2014 NCAA Division II All-South Central Region First Team, Lone Star Conference Newcomer of the Year, and LSC First Team honors in Williams lone season with the Rams.

Before joining the coaching ranks, Kimball was a standout at McMurry University and Texas A&M-Kingsville, leading his teams to three National Tournaments and a pair of conference championships during his career.
